FOR LOVE OF FELIX.

His Fatal Passion for Her Was Not Reciprocated.

Sensational Episode in a Catakilla Hotel Recalled by This Tragedy.

Additional facts learned this morning seem to indicate that the young actress. Emilie Rossi, killed herself for love of Emilie Rossi, killed herself for love of a man in Germany, whom her mother forbade her to marry, and that Gustave Roch committed snieide because Emilie would not marry him, and had determined to end an existence grown dark and unbearable to her.

There is little reason to believe now that Koch was anything and the special property of the fresh property of the fr

Koch was anything more than a dear friend to the dead girl.

WRY KOCH DIED, TOO.

She has left no sign of love for him, but there are many indications remaining of the great love he bore for her, and it seems that when the gril told him decidedly that she had determined to die, he then told her that doubt no seems and the seems that when would make him live without her, and so they planned the sensational duet of death.

Emilie Rossi came to this city for the first time in October, 1888, under a season's engagement to Manager Amberg, and went to board at the house of Mrs. Niemeyer, at 12 test Eleventh street, and there met Koch.

He was married then, but was suing for divorce from his wije. ine was married then, out was sinke for liveree from his wife time Koch had found annistakable evidence of his wife's guilty ove for his best friend, Gottfried Lands-

The latter had roomed with Koch until Koch married the pretty seventeen-year-old daughter of his landiady. Annie Schnoder, in July, 1886, and the young couple went to live in East Eleventh street.

BETRAYED BY HIS PRETTY WIFE, Landsman, who is an expert Custom-House examiner, was a frequent guest at his old triend knowe. In the latter part of August, 1888, Koch sent his preity young wife to board at the village of Margaret-ville, in the Catalian.

wite to heard at the village of Margaretville, in the Catskills.

A day or so later Landaman told Koch that he was going to triffine Corners in the Catskills on a vacation.

Griffin's was only a few miles from Margaretville, and a few days later Mrs. Roch wrote to her husband, casually remarking that "Godfrey had not liked it at the Corhere, and so had gone over to her place to board."

This aroused Koch's suspicions and he ensawed Lawwer Isaac H. Falk, a brother of his employer. Photographer Falk, to go with him to the Catskilla and secure evidence, if there was any, of her inducity.

They reached there the evening of Sept.
4, 1888, quite late, and first paida visit to

CAUGHT BY A FLASH LIGHT.

Stepping across the hall, Koch burst in the door of Landsmann's room, where Lawrer Falk, who carried a detective camers, took a focus on a couple of sleepers in the bed, and by the flash of an overpowering magnesism light a Disture of the guilty pair was instantaneously taken.

A highly dramatic scene ensued. Koch attempted to wreak vengcance on his false friend, but was prevented.

That same night hach aroused a squire and served the papers in a suit for divorce. When the grif came to trial, the flash light picture figured prominently, and the divorce was of course, granted.

His GENTLE CONTIDENTE.

HIS GENTLE CONFIDANTE.

His dente confidence.

Subsequently Landsmann married Mrs.

Rech. All these facts hoch poured into the sympathetic ears of Miss lines; and she besame his very good friend, while he became her infatnated lover.

When her engagement with Amberg was competed, though, a year ago less May, she returned to Berlin and Roch remained hore.
It is well known that he desired a marriage with her, but no one can be found who ever heard her express a wish to be united to him. There was no reason why they could not have been married had she leen whims.

They corresponded constantly white she was in Germany, and he worked away on a large grayin portrait of fimile, which, when he had completed it, he sent to her.

When, first employed to play with Mr.
Amberg's company an agent hired her, but After the first few days following her return Emilie did not speak any more about leaving her little room on the tuing figor front, of the Canni sirect house, and Mrs. Knorn was only too glad to keep her.

Knorn was only too glad to keep her.

Koch was very cheerful also for the first week after -he came back and tried to take her out to places of amusement and entertain her, but she did not seem to care much for his company, and then, it is thought, she made up her mind to die.

Koch's body was taken from the Eldridge street station yesterday to the shop of Dahin Brothers, andertakers, at 35 Stanton street, but a block or so away from the resting place of his dead love.

Mr. Dahin said this morning that as yet no arrangements had been made for Koch's funera, but that his body would in all probability be cremated with the girls at Frash Fond Sunday.

He is waiting to hear from the dead man's friend, Victor Stulke, who is in Fottsville, Pa.

Pa., At Carl's bearding-house, 232 East Twelfth street, where Stulke bearded with Koch, Mrs., Carl said this morning that she had received no answer to her telegram to Stulke.

"Doubtless the Government was encouraged by the ill-advised discourse of Father Cantwell, at Tipperary, to consider this a fitting moment for a demonstration of this kind. The real effect of its action will be to close upon ranks and annihilate dissension.

"Secretary Balfour, who, like the bourbons, seems unable to learn saything, is now beginning the whole list of stupid blunders over again that he began four years ago, with the important difference that we have not a single defeat to look back to, while he is compelled to indulge in a most woful retroepect."

The progress of the Ertzogroul since she left Constantinople for the East, many months ago, has been a most undignified and ludicrous one. She left Turkey short of money, it being understood that supplies were to besset for her use to the ports at which she was to call. The result was that her sejourn in those countries was indefinitely prolonged, in consequence of the officials at home not being able to keep their promises. In this way she lost some of her crew, and her officers were many times on the verge of rebellion, induced by starvation. The governors of the cities visited re-fused to remit harbor dues and grant other privileges that were of right due her as a Turkish man-of-war, on the ground that she was not sailing in that character, there not being powder enough on board to anable her crew to fire the regulation salutes. After many adventures only worthy of an opera bouffe navy, the Erizogroul finally arrived in Japanese waters, and it was on her return voyage that the disaster occurred.

GILROY'S DEATH AN ACCIDENT. Truckman Nugent Was Mistakenly

Accused of Killing Him. John Nugent, of 156 West Eighteenth street, was charged in the Jefferson Market Court this morning with having been concerned in the death of John Gilroy, the truckman, of 371 First avenue, wh found dead under his cart near the Worth Monument yesterday.

About two hours before Gilroy's death

About two hours before Gilroy's death Nugent had a quarrel with Gilroy's sen, whom he struck over the head with a why and then threatened to brain with a wrench. Gilroy took the wrench from Nugent and then went away.

When Gilroy was found fead two hours later, with a deep wound in his head, suspection rested on Nugent, and he was locked up.
Gilroy's death, however, was an accident, For some weeks past he had been troubled with what he called "dizzy spells." George Maynard, gas man at the Madison Square Theatre, testified in court that while passing the Worth monument he saw Gilroy stagger and fall. His head struck the curbstone.

Nugent was taken before Coroner Hanley and will probably be discharged. Gilroy was not the father of the Commissioner of Public Works.
